The birds are captured in various stages of flight, with wings spread, creating a sense of movement and energy. Reflection...

Just as Schroeder Hall reflects the images of the old in its windows, the 1959 Index reflects a part of the many-faceted areas of campus life. Between these covers you will find a reflection of the activities—social, athletic, and academic—that make up the compact collegiate world at ISNU.

Some of you may ask, “What is the collegiate world like?” It is a period of time filled with dates, homework, athletics, and classes; above all, it is the developing of the mind, including growth, maturation, and all of the educational terms combined. In short, college is a composite reflection of the world around us, and at the same time it is the forming of ideals, techniques, and practices which will benefit society through education.

Off Campus Housing

"Okay, roommate; it's your turn to do the dishes!" This is a familiar statement in the day of the many who live off campus, for light housekeeping chores are often among the duties of these students. Numbering over 1,000 strong, they enjoy all campus activities as well as many of their own. Many off campus houses have officers and plan activities during the year. A major event in which these students participate is Homecoming, when houses are decorated from foundation to attic in true ISNU spirit.

The year 1958-1959, the 102nd school year of Illinois State Normal University, is an important one in the history of the school. In order to plan well for the future with the anticipated expansion of enrollment, a Ten-Year Plan has been prepared by the faculty. Of necessity, quantity was emphasized in plans for future needs in land, buildings, and staff. Nonetheless, quality was not forgotten. It was a major factor in discussing and deciding on curricula and standards. The real emphasis was on the task of preparing teachers. As one turns the pages of this Index one will see and read of many of the events which affect the University and of the people who are making the University what it is today.

The editor and staff of the Index are to be commended in preparing this record of the history of 1958-1959 at Illinois State Normal University.

A Simple Calculation

Interested in mathematics? A little simple multiplication reveals that the average student at ISNU spends — let's see — 36 semester weeks times seven days a week, times 24 hours a day, times 60 minutes an hour, times 60 seconds a minute: a total of 21,772,800 seconds in school, or at least that amount of time on campus. It's an impressive figure, isn't it? Imagine 21,772,800 seconds devoted to higher education by the 3,400 students at Illinois State Normal University.

What do they do with this time, you may ask. Harried students, occupied with numerous activities such as social, academic, and athletic, probably could not give a very accurate accounting of their time down to the last second. Still, you may be sure that, for the most part, this time is spent profitably whether it is sipping a cup of coffee at the Cage, cheering lustily at a sports event, studying relentlessly at the

Dat ol' debbil, money, rears its ugly head at the end of registration. Two students wait at the cashier's window.

Schedule of classes, yes. Mother's maiden name? Why must I keep putting it down; it never changes. Hmm, one more space filled.

One more stop, another place to sign one's name, this time a stop, though, that is designed to insure freshmen a chance for recognition as students at ISNU. Sign ups for Index photos go briskly on registration day as two Index staff members, fortified by a cup of coffee, handle a stream of eager students. Members of other classes wait until later in the fall to sign up.

This scene of destruction is actually a scene of progress as Old Main gives way to the new. Education is our keynote, but progress is our byword.

Strolling underneath the lush green of Fell Hall's fragrant magnolia tree, two students chat amiably of campus happenings on their way to classes.

library, trying to absorb a classroom lecture, or dancing dreamily with their favorite partner at an all-school dance.

First time-consuming activity in any school year is registration week. The hectic time during registration is spent in rushing from one end of campus to the other and in filling out a voluminous form. Once that is out of the way, things settle down to a more or less regular routine. Early fall brings with it crisp autumn days and the echoes of cheers from McCormick Field as enthusiastic fans cheer the win-hungry Redbird eleven as they clash with IAC foes. On Kappa's rolling golf course, cross country squad members pound the turf in competition with other teams.

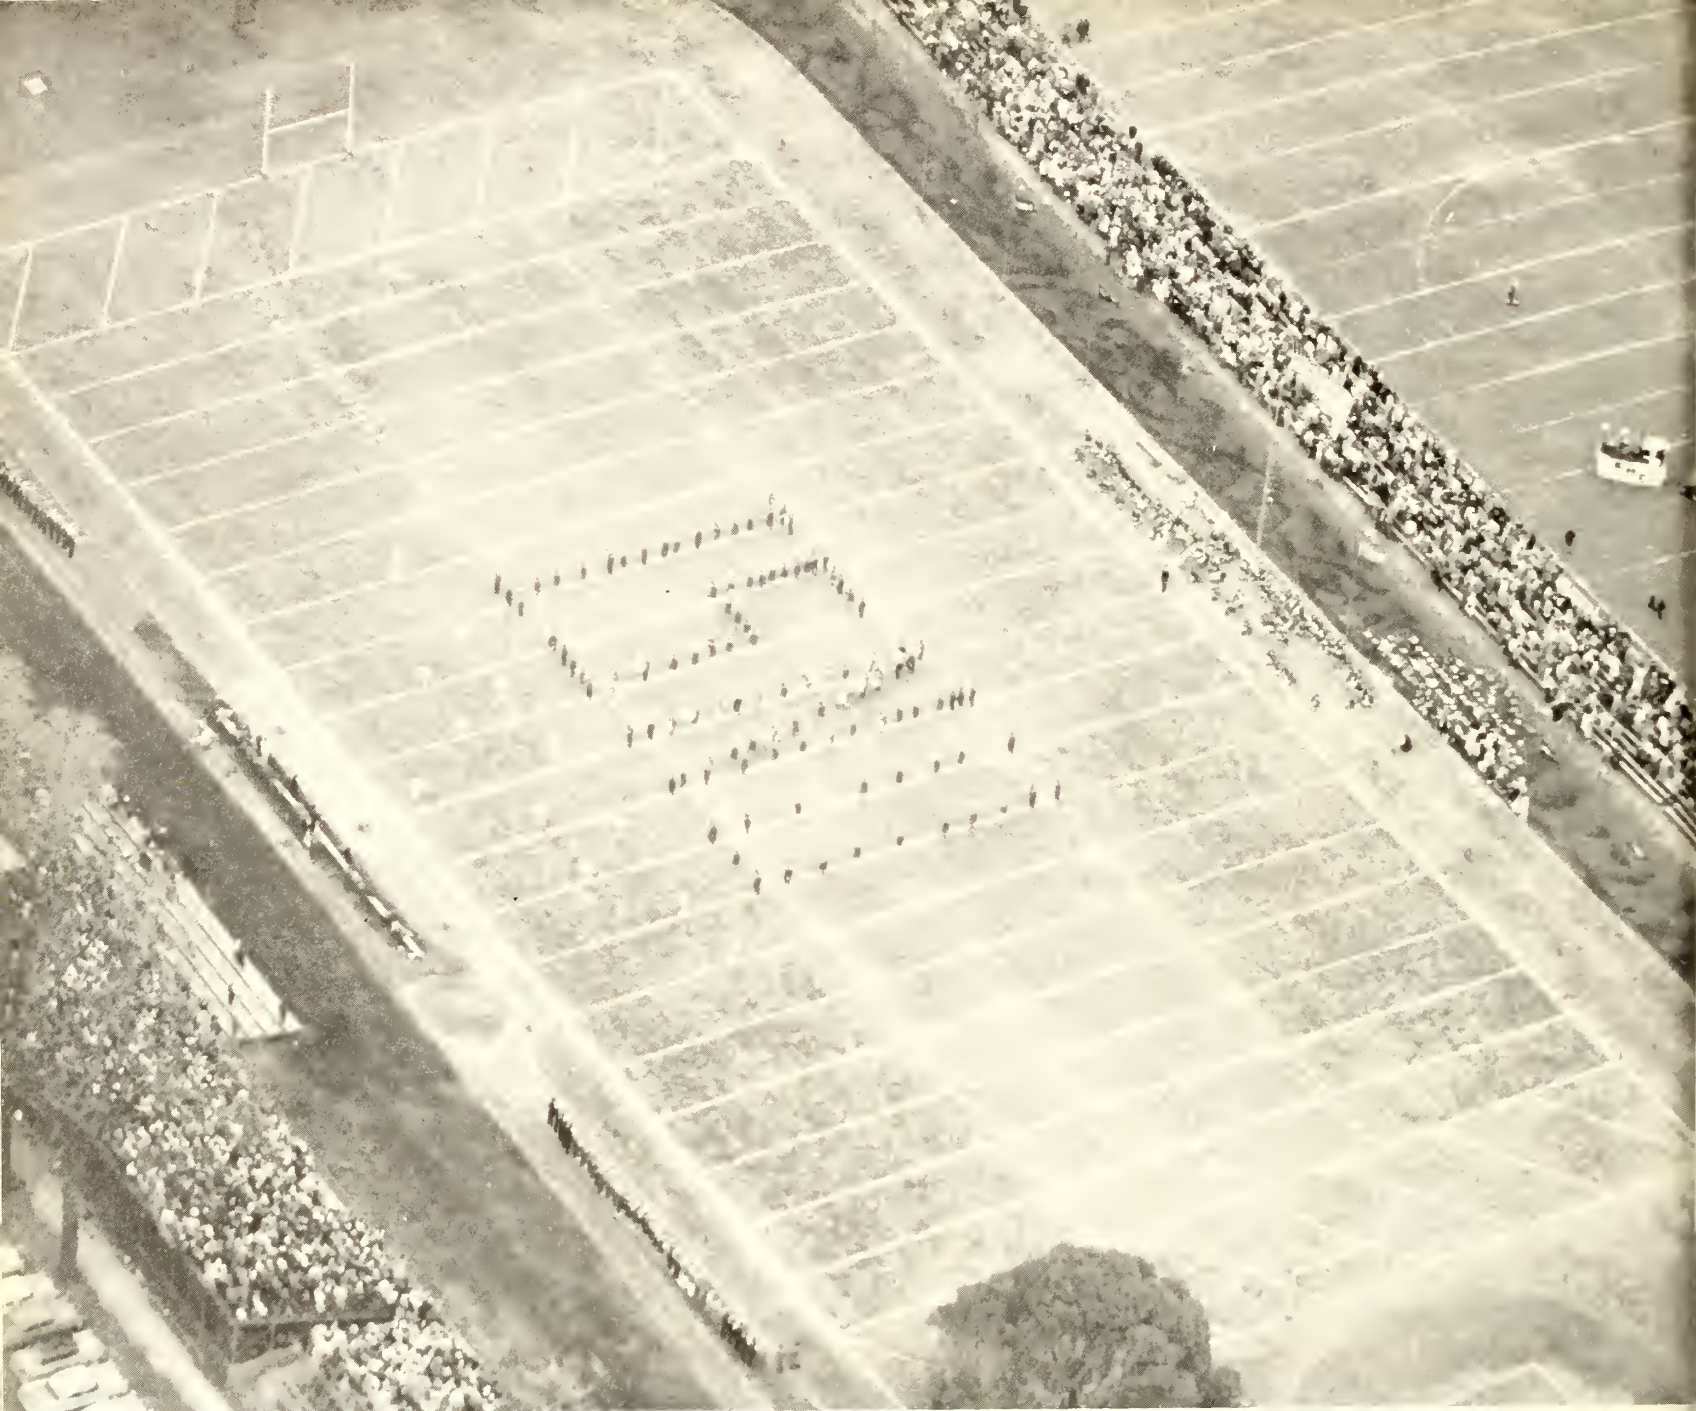

Changes mark the otherwise sameness of the campus scene as Old Main, century-old landmark of ISNU, gives way to a network of freshly-laid sidewalks surrounding a memorial marker placed on the site of the building that stood for so many years as a symbol of the teacher education tradition that has prevailed at Illinois State Normal University.

Homecoming was swept in this year by a damp, gusty wind. Float-building time, planning sessions for receptions, coffee hours, the dance, and the play occupied much of the students' fast-fleeing seconds.

The approach of winter made many students buckle down with a determination to do well scholastically, while still maintaining a full social schedule. Classwork during the day found a pleasant counterpart at night when students attended parties, dances, Entertainment Board presentations, club meetings, and the variety of activities that mark a well-rounded series of extracurricular functions at a University.

A momentary breather came with the Christmas holidays. A beautiful Christmas tree lighting ceremony, mistletoe-enhanced formal dances, and the exciting beginning of a conference-winning basketball season rounded out the year's end.

The new year, with its seconds ticking rapidly away, brought basketball back into focus again with its sister winter sports — wrestling, gymnastics, and swimming. With it, also, came another semester of classroom activity, plus specially-planned social functions. A one-week break for hardier souls came with ISNU's participation in the NAIA basketball tourney in Kansas City. Eager fans, numbering close to 300, cheered their IIAC championship five.

Soon, though, all eyes turned toward the end of the school year and the prospect of spring's once more arriving on campus. With warmer days and the close of the winter sports schedule, thoughts turned to spring sports—baseball and track—and to the never-ending demands of classroom work.

Socially, action picked up again with the spring carnival, the Stunt Show, Blackfriars' Show, Sophomore Cotillion, Junior-Senior prom, and graduation capturing much of the spotlight. Graduation garnered the most attention as the Senior Class prepared for its final departure from campus life to enter professional careers. The Entertainment Board closed another successful season, as did the Big Four. Theta Alpha Phi gave its production of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," and seniors took time off from the filing of credentials and job-hunting to skip for one day.

How many seconds are there in a school year? Oh, yes—21,772,800. How are they spent?—in a multitude of ways covering every aspect of campus life. Students experience 36 weeks of growth during each school year. Is it wasted time? No, it is not. Ask any student at ISNU. Every day, every hour, every minute, every second is valuable. Education is a lifelong process, someone has said, and no student intends to waste any of it.

Bailly, of the French song-writing team of Varel and Bailly, shares the spotlight with Les Chanteurs de Paris as they present an array of engaging Continental songs.

After the performance of the Clebanoff Strings, music lovers eagerly crowd around to receive the autograph of conductor Herman Clebanoff.

Appearing in a November concert was Byron Janis, one of America's youngest and most talented pianists, who was completing his eleventh transeontinental tour.

As entertaining off-stage as he is on stage, a relaxed Basil Rathbone charms a trio of appreciative ISNUites—Miss Isabelle Terrill, Norma Leben, and Clifford Scott.

Entertainment Board

If one were to ascribe characteristics to the series presented by the Entertainment Board at ISNU, these characteristics would be quality and versatility. The series this year proved to be no exception, ranging from the universal appeal of the Clebanoff Strings to the classical artistry of Byron Janis and the dramatic technique of Basil Rathbone. The light-hearted Les Chanteurs de Paris with Varel and Bailly, the puckish Emlyn Williams with his readings from Dylan Thomas, the intricate rhythms of Flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya and dancer Trianita, the deep-throated singing of Mahalia Jackson, and the mellow bowing of cellist Ennio Bolognini all contributed to another successful season. Besides these live performances, Arts Film offerings included a variety of movies.

Caught in the act! The camera captures members of the Clebanoff Strings in action during their performance at an Entertainment Board presentation.

Big Four

Music for all tastes in dancing—that's the feature of the Big Four committee offerings made this season. Leading off the year was Tex Beneke's Orchestra with "Sh-Boom" stars, the Crew Cuts, as added attractions. Warren Covington, directing the Tommy Dorsey troupe, carried on in the Sentimental Gentleman's fine tradition. Breaking up the usual dance schedule was an informal jazz concert by the Chico Hamilton Quintet, who gave the jeans-dressed crowd a touch of the "coolest" from the world of modern jazz. Topping off the season were performances by Les Brown's band of renown, followed by the famous Stan Kenton aggregation.

The strains of Tommy Dorsey's band, hundreds of rhythmic, moving feet, soft lights—all these make up a very crowded, typical Big Four.

Homecoming Activities

Ingredients for a successful Homecoming: the fire of enthusiasm, the spice of comedy, the vivid spectacle of floats in a parade, imaginative house and dorm decorations, the thrill of an exciting football game, the dreamy quality of a dance, and the radiance of the Queen and her court. All these elements fused together to serve up another memorable Homecoming for ISNU as it started on its 101st year.

Kicking off the action-packed weekend was the pep assembly on South Campus that was brilliantly lighted by a roaring 60-foot bonfire. With cheers still ringing in the air, returning alumni, students, and visitors trooped to Capen to view the Homecoming play "Holiday for Lovers," a lively modern comedy of the adventures of a thoroughly conventional Milwaukee couple who visit Europe for the first time with their two attractive daughters.

Remnants of Old Main burn brightly as hundreds of alums and students gather on a chilly Friday evening to build up enthusiasm for the thrilling parade and football game against Northern Illinois University on Saturday afternoon.

A fire-breathing dragon and a stalwart Siegfried battle it out on the Lowell Mason Club's prize-winning Homecoming parade float. "As Siegfried Slew the Dragon, so the Redbirds Shall Slay the Huskies!" was the club's prediction—and they did, by a 15 point margin that afternoon.

Making weather forecasts that come true is not always easy, but the off-campus house at 204 South School foretold the Huskies' fate at the hands of the Redbirds with their winning house decoration.

Rocketing the Huskies into orbit was the pleasant task of the Redbird mascot in Dunn-Barton's clever decoration, "It Won't Take 'Mush' to Send 'Em Into Orbit." Dunn-Barton's effort won first place in dormitory competition.

rounding area high schools, crowds flowed into McCormick Field that afternoon for ISNU's contest with Northern Illinois' Huskies. The rampaging Redbirds could not be stopped by NIU as they romped to an easy 33-18 win on the strength of their well-balanced offensive and defensive play.

Threatening gray skies did not dampen the half-time ceremonies as ISNU's and NIU's marching bands performed high-stepping, intricate maneuvers. Homecoming Queen Judy Darby and her court were introduced to the applauding spectators. Another colorful feature of the Homecoming game was the Birdie Balloon Blast

Women's League Spring Carnival

"Ring the leg!" "Brown nose!" "Poofy puffers!" Those were some of the cries heard at the annual Women's League Spring Carnival. Game booths, splashed with bright shades of red, blue, green, and gold, were jammed with gay ISNU students. Special cheers went to Fell Hall for winning first prize with its "Nose Poll," to Walker Hall for capturing second prize with "Le Gartiere Tosse," and to KDE, whose "Whole Child" took third place. Talented students entertained the crowd with piano playing, vocalizing, pantomining, and the performing of magic tricks during the Talent Show. At the show's conclusion, carnival-goers flocked back to the booths.

After much anxious consideration, workers at Jesse's Nose Poll decide to label this profile as the "needle" nose type.

While many await their turn to get "hitched" at the Freshman Booth, Donna Bessant, a feminine version of Marryin' Sam, listens to the "I do's" of one marriage-minded couple.

*The chorus line breaks into a spirited number during the Lowell Mason production of Irving Berlin's Call Me Madam, a spoof on diplomatic life. "Mrs. Sally Adams requests the pleasure of your company," they sing as they open the show.*

"Call Me Madam"

By Irving Berlin

Lowell Mason Club chose for its production this year the lively Broadway musical, Call Me Madam, which was first produced in 1950 with Ethel Merman starring as Sally Adams, Ambassadors to Lichtenberg. At ISNU, Ruth Lemon took the lead role and frolicked her way through an evening of romantic involvement and tuneful merriment. Ably supported by Jerry Keck, Lorena Ballenger, Bob McFarland, and a large cast, the musical by Irving Berlin sparkled with bright tunes as it gently spoofed high-powered politics and diplomatic doings. Directed by Ralph Schlesinger, the cast and chorus were accompanied by a 17-piece orchestra.

Mike Stiers sits pensively backstage waiting for his cue to go on stage for his role as the protocol-bound chamberlain.

"Cosmo!" "Sally!" Ruth Lemon, as party-loving Sally Adams, greets Cosmo (Jerry Keck) at one of her famous Washington soirees. Mike Stiers, as the chamberlain, looks on solemnly.

"You're not sick, you're just in love . . ." comforts Sally to the lovelorn Kenneth (Bob McFarland) as he complains, "I keep talking in my sleep at night, and what's more, I've lost my appetite."

Orchesis Concert

A sensitive view of life, complete with laughter, sorrow, love, and ironic complications, is perhaps the best way to describe the scope and depth of the Orchesis Modern Dance Concert. Metcalf Auditorium was the setting and March 5 and 6 were the dates for the honorary organization's annual excursion into creative dance movement. The concert-goers witnessed such diversified numbers as "The Last Flower," James Thurber's poem of the last people on earth, and "Five Minus Two," "The Promenade," and "Unameitt," all of them danced and choreographed by the club's members. The highlight of the program was "The Rite of Autumn," showing the comparison between a modern-day football game and a pagan religious ceremony. The dancing depicted the intense rivalry between the priesthoods and the final culmination of battle resulting in the celebration of the victors. In this number, the dancers demonstrated a unique flair for costuming, dancing, and movement which was typical of the entire production.

Judy Fairchild caresses "The Last Flower," during the presentation of James Thurber's poem, a poignant tale of the last people on earth.

"Let's have a go, you Redbirds!" This graceful squad of cheerleaders simulates the frenzied enthusiasm of fans at a football game during "The Rite of Autumn."

Even burlap bags can be made into effective costumes by Orchesis dancers. Here, two girls sway like willows as their companion lies relaxed.

Reaching, stretching, this trio forms a balanced pattern of rhythmic movement.

"Send us in, coach," plead this quintet of football players in the Orchesis satire "The Rites of Fall," a lampoon of the comparisons between football mania and pagan religious ceremonies.

"Seven and a half cents . . ." seems to be the lyric Fell Hall girls are singing as they play "The Teacher's Game" to win first place in the annual Stunt Show.

Spring Stunt Show

With eager eyes the students, faculty, and general public watched as four groups excitedly performed their scenes for the Spring Stunt Show, sponsored by the University Club. The acts, based upon events of the year which students adapted to campus life, displayed a tremendous amount of preparation and rehearsal.

For the players, tension and enthusiasm reigned high. Vigorous audience applause and hearty laughter provided atmosphere. The show, climaxed by the Faculty Stunt, ended with the announcing of the two top winners. First place went to Fell Hall; second place went to Jesters' production of "The Romantie Game."

"Love is all," claims the Queen (Julie Anderson) as the King (Jim Smith), Girl (Becki Morris), and Duke (Dou Capes) listen intently.

"The Cave Dwellers"

by William Saroyan

Jesters' production of William Saroyan's drama, The Cave Dwellers, was one of the finest presentations made on Capen's stage. The thought-provoking staging by Miss Mabel Clare Allen and the striking sets by Jamil Toubbeh captured the mystical quality of this modern American drama. Excellent characterizations of the difficult roles by the competent east provided an evening of theater enjoyment for the audience. The play depicts the lives of east-aways from society as they huddle together in an abandoned theater. They are able to find meaning in life through the realization that love is the guiding force.

"Sleep, child, sleep . . ." croons Becki Morris to the newborn baby that enters the lives of the castaways in the deserted theater.

Amidst royalty, Jack Bond gives Queen Donna Armstrong her loving cup, as her court—Barb Sladek, Karen Willsey, Barb Weaver, and Audrey Mascitti—look on.

Sweetheart Ball

Gaily decorated in red and white hearts, the Student Union sparkled on February 13 as the night of the Sweetheart Ball arrived. In the week previous to the important night, all men on campus had an opportunity to vote in an election sponsored by the U Club for the Sweetheart of their choice. At last they were to find out who would reign as Queen of their hearts.

Soon every couple whirled about the Ballroom to the music of Johnny Bruce, his band, and his vocalist. The highlight of the romantic evening came when U Club president Jack Bond introduced Queen Donna Armstrong and her Court.

Queen Donna Armstrong, carrying fragrant "Sweetheart" roses, reigns over the dance as she stands before her subjects.

Surrounded by hearts, cupids, and romance, happy couples whirl about the Student Union Ballroom until the night of February 13 closes, ending their hours of enchantment.

A lively group of dancers respond to the music of Billy Williams with rhythmic dance steps.

Junior-Senior Prom

As the hour of nine approached on the night of June 6, 1958, college students, attired in their finest formal array, began streaming into the Student Union Ballroom. The occasion was the long-awaited Junior-Senior Prom, sponsored by the Junior class. In portraying the Prom's theme, "Brave New World," a nine-foot high globe was placed in the middle of the ballroom. Only after the hour of midnight did the music of Billy Williams and his orchestra end, thus closing this final formal of the school year.

"How's that?" says Lowell Antenen over the shoulder of Eleanor White while talking with Sara Cummings and John Lowey during intermission.

Something tells us that this trick isn't going to work. Of course, the Gamma Phi clowns are not worried as they attempt a double somersault into a chair.

Alley-oop! This clever trampoline act gives Dale Montgomery and Pat Werner an idea of what the world looks like upside down.

Gamma Phi Circus

True atmosphere of the "Big Top" came to ISNU as 50-plus student performers provided gymnastic thrills and skills to a packed house. The trapeze, the swinging ladder, balanced beams, and parallel bars all provided an evening of varied entertainment to suit the fancy of all spectators. Of special interest were a roller skating feat by "The Whirlos" and fire dancing and twirling by feminine talent. A light touch was added by the circus clowns, and acrobatic dance, and trampoline performances. Ruling over gaiety and fun was Gamma Phi Queen Doris Carmichael, who shared her throne with her court of four.

Highlighting the night's events, Dale Montgomery crowns Doris Carmichael as Gamma Phi Queen. Waiting in attendance are the Queen's court: Carol Moore, Karlene Douglass, Jo Cottingham, and Elmarie Lindsey.

A lot of muscular control, timing, and agility go into this stunt as two girls perform simultaneously on the parallel bars while their aides watch with approval.

Captivating her audience, Sandra Nardin cautiously steps forward, closes her eyes, and twists and twirls a fiery baton in a feat of graceful dexterity.

"Isle of Paradise"

Under a ceiling of fishnet, roses, and blue lights, the hundreds of couples who attended the Sophomore Cotillion, "Isle of Paradise," were enveloped in an atmosphere of Polynesia. McCormick Gym was decorated with large, black island birds, accented with blue and green colored spotlights. Highlighting the dance, which featured the music of Johnny Rinaldo and his orchestra, was the crowning of the royalty. For the first time in the history of the formal, two Queens, Ardelle Mason and Judy Armstrong, were chosen by the sophomore class to reign over the dance. Mike Curry was crowned King of the Cotillion. The court consisted of Mary Matteson, Dean Puyear, Jo Cottingham, and Al Petty.

King Mike Curry has the pleasure of being crowned by the two Queens of the Sophomore Cotillion, Ardelle Mason and Judy Armstrong.

Hundreds of guests are transported to the "Isle of Paradise" for an enjoyable evening of dancing in a Polynesian atmosphere.

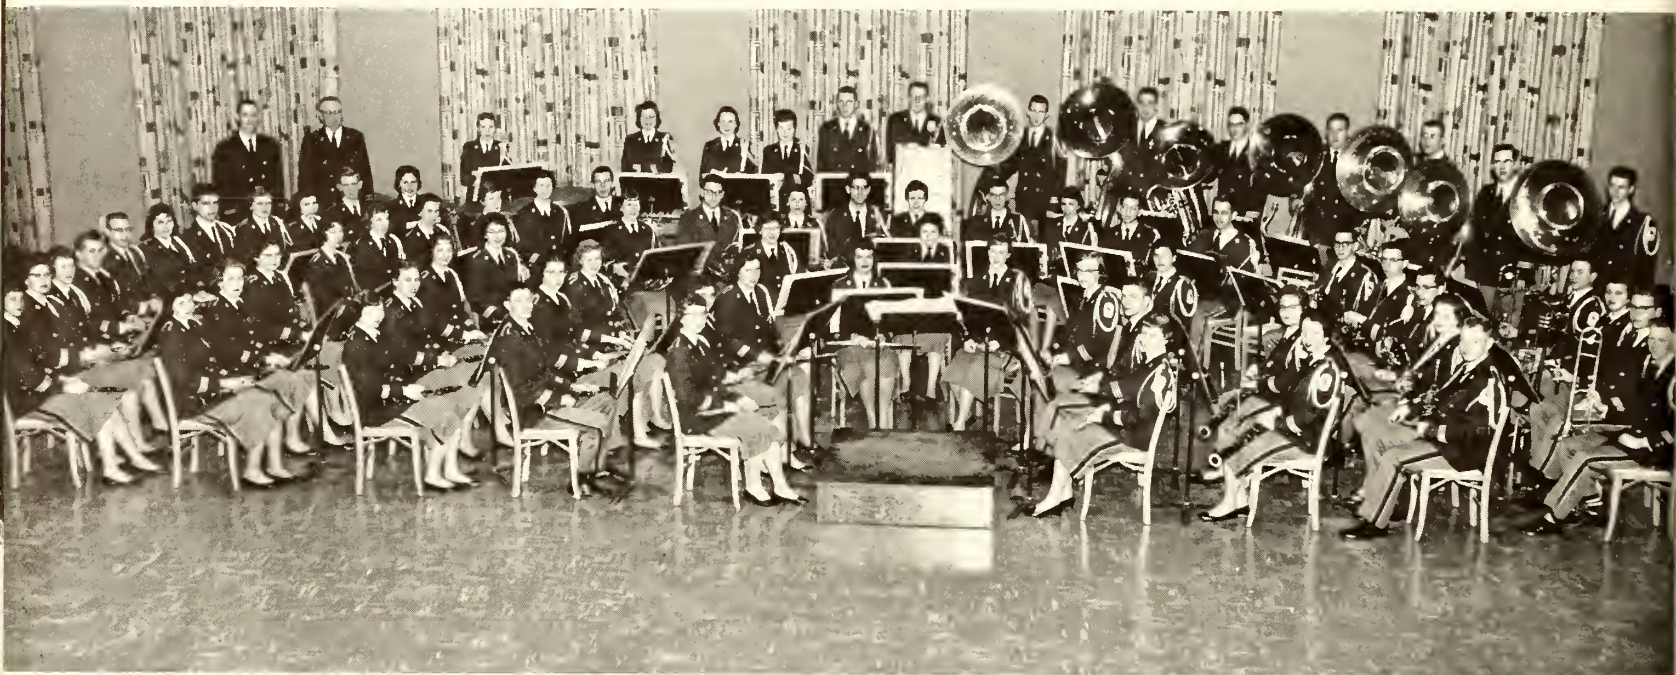

With stop watch in hand, Dale Gronemeier, left, Bill Simms, and Gary Planck prepare for another broadcast from Tower Studios as the sound engineer checks.

Tower Studios

The second hand sweeps around, the red light flashes, and the magic words "on the air" signal the beginning of another Tower Studios broadcast from the campus at ISNU. A five-minute broadcast of campus events each weekday is supplemented by special broadcasts of faculty anthologies and programs pertaining to Illinois history. A part of extra-curricular speech work, Tower Studios offers those interested in radio work an opportunity to participate in actual broadcasting.

Dale Gronemeier gives Bill Simms the signal for him to begin another Tower Studios presentation while the sound engineer checks his equipment to see that everything is in order. Each weekday night WJBC, Bloomington, airs the Towers Studios news for local residents.

The ISNU Concert Band poises for action and awaits the downbeat for its annual concert.

Concert Band

The University Concert Band, under the baton of Mr. Arden L. Vance, combines the Men's and Women's Marching Bands to present concerts at ISNU and in the surrounding area. During the football season the two marching bands perform while executing intricate maneuvers on the football field. The Band's annual spring concert is an important attraction on the University schedule. The Band has a membership of nearly 100 and a wide repertoire.

University Orchestra

A major feature of the ISNU music department is the University Orchestra, directed by Dr. Irwin Spector. Here students are given the opportunity to learn and perform a wide variety of music from light works to the great classics. The sound of their music can often be heard in the afternoon as they prepare for concerts and tours. Competition varies in intensity among the various sections, but, as any member could testify, it is nearly always present throughout the school year.

Orchestra officers Ron Baumgardner, Jerry Hug, and Karen Zablackis gather around the piano to talk preceding one of their many rehearsals.

Men's Glee Club

ISNU's outstanding Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Harlan W. Peithman, made their annual spring tour to the Chicago area high schools this year during the Easter break from classes. The Glee Club was called upon many times to entertain at banquets and meetings in the Student Union and around the Bloomington area. The group also presented a concert for the State Normal student body in the Union's ballroom. Part of the group's itinerary included a live broadcast over Champaign's television station WCIA. The Glee Club's RCA Victor reecording, made during the Centennial Year at ISNU, is still a popular one with Normal students and faculty. The seventy-voice Glee Club carries the ISNU name throughout the mid-west as they lift their voices in the traditional male style.

Forensics

"Should the further development of nuclear weapons be prohibited by international agreement?" This question occupied the minds of the members of the forensics squad who participated in debate. ISNU's two-man teams were successful in defending their positions on the question, whether they were affirmative or negative. Of the entire debate squad, special commendation went to the team of Gronemeier and Simms, as they consistently outpointed competitors to garner for themselves superior and excellent ratings.

But, you say, there is more to forensic work than debate. That is true, and ISNU's squad proved its worth in other fields as well while competing in oratory, extempore speaking, oral interpretation, discussion, and radio newscasting.

Dale Gronemeier, Betty Haack, and Bill Simms, top winners in the 27th Annual Forensics Tournament held on the ISNU campus, smile as they look over the judges' ratings.

The Vidette

Would you like to know what is involved in putting out a campus newspaper each Wednesday? Ask any Vidette member and he would probably answer, "Hard work." Hard work is a major factor, of course, but there is something even more important that is involved. It is the curiosity of a reporter trying to ferret out interesting news to present to readers. It is the patience in editing and revising copy that is turned in. It is the creative talents of many people pooled together on layout and page make-up. It is ability of the photographer to take not just any picture, but a picture that will say more than the proverbial 10,000 words.

Still, it goes beyond even these things. It is the awareness of the values of communication. What does this awareness mean to ISNU? Simply this, that there is a small, but active staff of people from all areas of the campus who work long and hard hours together each week to meet Thursday deadlines in order to turn out a campus newspaper that is representative of the students, faculty, and administration of the University.

All work and no play, though, would make anyone, even an intrepid Vidette reporter, a dull individual. To balance work against pleasure, Vidette staffers maintain a policy of doing the work they enjoy best, while enjoying the social contact that is offered. Uniting business and pleasure, an almost unbeatable combination anywhere, gives the Vidette and its members, editors and reporters alike, a unique position at ISNU.

The Index

Deadlines, deadlines, dead-tired—that was the reaction of the Index staff as it wound up another hectic session in getting out a yearbook that reflects the campus life at ISNU. Far into the night, office lights burned brightly as the staff rushed to meet the final deadline. The pictures were all taken, the copy was all written, but the tedious task of proofreading still had to be done. Many things went into the making of the yearbook—hours of work, gallons of coffee, cigarettes, headaches, and a final hour of joy when Editor John Orolin said, "Let's wrap it up."

From beginning to end, the job was a tremendous one as each section of the book first had to be planned in detail, then pictures had to be taken and processed by the photographic staff, and endless pages of copy had to be written. Conferences, planning sessions, and work done under the pressure of that old enemy—time—were the responsibilities of the yearbook staff members. The literary staff had the job of identifying pictures, as well as writing all of the eaptions and copy in the book. The other tasks were completed by the typists, the filing staff, the proofreaders, and the photographers. To the editor fell the job of planning the layouts, supervising the taking of pictures, and then assembling the mountains of pages, copy, and pictures into the book that you now hold before you.

The Index is your history book, the history of a year. More than that, it is a souvenir, a personal story in pictures and copy of a college year gone by.

Student Council

Promoting inter-school unity is the goal of the Student Council. This goal is carried out in various projects, among them the sponsoring of the Homecoming bonfire and pep rally, and the Campus Chest Drive. The proceeds of this drive go to the special welfare agencies throughout the world.

Taking charge of many of the school elections and approving the constitutions of new organizations on campus are some of the other functions of the Council. This year the Council, which is composed of representatives from the various departments, sold souvenir bricks from Old Main to establish a scholarship for Student Council Alumni.

Student Union Board, governing body for the Student Union, serves a variety of functions. In addition to setting policy for the Student Union, the Board sponsored many social gatherings for the student body this year.

Newly organized groups on campus, which the Board sanctioned, included the Ski Club and the Married Students Club. Two dances, the Cabaret Dance and the Gold Diggers Ball, plus music hours, bridge lessons, coffee hours for art exhibits shown in the lounge, a travel series featuring faculty lecturers, and a birthday party for the Union comprised some of its activities.

Several members of the Board traveled to Valparaiso, Indiana, for a conference of the Association of College Unions.

Women's Chorus

Women's Chorus, the largest singing group on the Illinois State Normal University campus, is open to all girls in the student body who express a desire to sing. And sing they do — at concerts, special programs, and the Messiah at Christmas time. Members of the chorus are eligible for the Treble Choir after tryouts and voice checks. Mr. John Terwilliger holds the baton for this large vocal group.

Treble Choir

Competitive tryouts and voice checks among the women of Women's Chorus allow the best to sing in the Treble Choir. The small group participates in the Messiah and in the fall and spring choral concerts. The Treble Choir is often asked to present programs for various social and educational events throughout the area.

University Choir

Performing a wide variety of music, the University Choir presents a number of programs both on and off campus throughout the school year. Just before Christmas vacation the Choir unites with all other campus choral groups to present Handel's Messiah. Membership in the Choir, which is directed by Mr. James Roderick, is on a highly competitive basis. Not only does participation in such a group provide students with an opportunity to sing, but it also acquaints them with the work they will do and the problems they will face as teachers.

Choir officers Linda Heacock, Martha Lehr, Marge Powers, and Jerry Bradley discuss last minute preparations with Mr. Roderick for one of the group's two concerts.

Outfielder Ron Madden slides safely into home with one of State Normal's six runs in the McCormick Field encounter with Wesleyan. The six-point effort was not enough as the Titans went on to even a two-game series with the Redbirds, 11-6, after having fallen to ISNU, 5-4, in an earlier game.

Baseball

Spring vacation again found the baseball Redbirds in the Deep South for their spring training games before starting the regular season. The Birds returned to Normal with a 4-4 mark for the trip and went into conference play against Central Michigan in the McCormick Field opener. After a loss and a tie with the IIAC foes, the Birds went on to win seven of their first ten ball games while losing only two and tying one. When the season ended, Normal had 18 games chalked up in the win column against 13 losses and one tie. Against non-conference competition, Coach Harold Frye's charges notched 11 victories while losing only five games. The Redbirds' bid for a return to the conference championship failed, and the Birds finished in fourth place behind Southern, Central, and Eastern Michigan.

The Redbirds continued their dominance over the University of Illinois as they stopped the Illini, 10-8. The previous season had seen Normal edge the Big Ten squad in a 16-inning marathon contest. Against Bradley University ISNU came up with a split two-game series. In the first encounter the Braves squeezed past the Fryemen, 4-3, but later in the season the Birds stopped the Peoria crew, 6-2.

Four veteran Redbirds, pitchers Damon Brown and Wayne Patkunas and outfielders Carl Eichstaedt and Wendell Good, all played their last year for ISNU. The Birds elected power hitter Good as the Most Valuable Player. Conference coaches named Eichstaedt and catcher Tom Hodgson to the All-Interstate Conference team. Brown and outfielder Norman Jenkins received bids as members of the conference second team.

Golf

State Normal's golf squad, led by captain Bob Basarich, couldn't find the winning way and closed the 1958 season on the short end of a 7-17 record. Playing their home matches at Bloomington's Highland Park Golf Course, the Redbirds came on strong to notch a pair of victories over Lewis College and topped Illinois Wesleyan on two occasions. Coach Howard Hancock's squad also hit their stride for victories over Elmhurst College, Eureka College, and Southern Illinois University. Junior Frank Wright led the Birds to fifth place in the HAC meet held at State Normal in May. Western Illinois, twice victors over Normal, won the league title. Consistently balanced team scoring was the one big factor leading to the Birds' showing. School support of golf at ISNU is very poor and could have been partly responsible for the team's lack of victories.

Team captain Bob Basarich, playing his last season for the Redbirds in 1958, was one of the most valuable golfers in ISNU's seven victories last year.

Track

Track coach Joe Cogdal's chargers managed to come out on the top end of only one match during 1958, a 92-39 rout of Chanute Air Force Base. While the Birds could not get on the victory end of dual matches, many on the team were standout entries in several events. The North Central Invitational Meet at Naperville saw distance runner Lynn Viscor turn in a school record performance in the two mile run. Viscor's effort gave him second place in the event in a time of 9:58.6. Gary Hodgson broke a school record in the high jump with a 5 foot, 10½ inch leap. Later in the AAU Meet, Dave Shinneman set a record in the 1,000-yard run as he crossed the line in 2:19.1. Shinneman also set records at the Bradley Relays and in a dual meet with Eastern Illinois at McCormick Field. At Bradley, the veteran Redbird trackman ran the mile in 4:27.8 and in the Eastern Meet set records in the mile and in the 880-yard run. Marty Rademacher broke a meet record at the Elmhurst Invitational and became the first Redbird to toss the javelin more than 200 feet, with a 202 foot, 8½ inch heave. Rademacher also won the javelin event in the State Meet while senior Rod Bonser won the discus. ISNU placed sixth in the IIAC Meet held here in May. Eastern Michigan took first.

Gary Hodgson clears the bar in the pole vault event during a meet with Eastern Illinois at ISNU. Hodgson was a consistent winner in the high jump and pole vault for Joe Cogdal's track team.

Big Rod Bonser, veteran Redbird field event star, gives the 16-pound shot a heave during a meet with Eastern Illinois at McCormick Field early in the 1958 track season. Bonser was a consistent winner in the shot put and discus events.

Gymnastics

State Normal's two year old gymnastics squad took it on the chin this past season, winning three meets while losing six. The Redbird team had to depend on only a handful of participants in the relatively new ISNU sport but did manage convincing victories over Eastern Illinois twice and Northern Illinois once. Wayne Truex's charges made a strong bid at the IAC meet in Carbondale as they racked up 77 points, good for third place. Top performers for the Birds in the league contest were John Hinds on the flying rings and Dale Montgomery on the side horse. Both Hinds and Montgomery earned third place in their specialties.

Tennis

State Normal's tennis squad got off to a flying start and found themselves in the loss column only twice as they piled up a 16-2 record for the season. The Birds were the odds-on favorite to win the conference title, played on the McCormick courts this year. Southern and Eastern came on strong, however, and dropped coach Gene Hill's charges to third place. Southern took the flag with 18 points followed by Eastern's 17, while Normal came in a close third with 15. The Redbirds won their first four meets handily but had to put the pressure on to edge Eastern, 5-4. The University of Illinois handed ISNU its only rout of the year as they blanked the Birds, 9-0. For the season, the ISNU netters garnered nine shut-outs, three of them coming against IIAAC schools. The Redbirds' greatest winning power came from Pat Grant and Jim Hurst, who teamed up for the number one doubles combination. Winning punch also came from Lyle Guenther, Mike Copp, and Frank Marana.

Varsity Football

State Normal's 1958 football Redbirds, injury ridden and reserve weak, fought an uphill battle all season to gain fourth in the Interstate Interecollegiate Conference. After losing their first four ball games, two of them to league foes, the Birds put on the pressure and surprised everyone with a 21-8 conquest of conference giants Southern Illinois at Carbondale. Northern Illinois next felt the sting of the ISNU eleven at its best in the Homecoming fray as Wayne Meece generated the Birds to a 33-18 victory. Meece had been on the injured list for the Southern game, but freshman Keith Rieger took command and handled the Normal offense. Normal's brief victory string was cut short by powerful Western on Dad's Day the next weekend, and the following week Eastern came from behind on their own field to stop a Redbird threat, 20-12. With conference battles completed, the football attention turned to Bloomington for traditional season's closing encounter with Illinois Wesleyan. Rain and mud failed to put the damper on the fired-up Birds as they topped the Titans, 14-7.

Frank Simester battles two Eastern Michigan safetymen in a successful attempt to prevent an intercepted pass. Simester, a freshman playing reserve end, was one of the favorite targets for Redbird passing.

Regular quarterback Wayne Meece is carried off the field with a leg injury that sidelined the sophomore signal caller for three weekends. Meece was a master of the option play, but the Birds found an able substitute in freshman Keith Rieger.

Halfback Sam Bair, one of the leading Redbird runners, skirts around Western's defensive line during the annual Dad's Day contest at McCormick Field. Bair went for considerable yardage before being brought down. Western edged the Birds, 16-10.

Early fall chalk-talks, under the direction of head football coach Ed Struck, prepare the 1958 Redbirds for the tough grind ahead.

Quarterback Wayne Meece attempts a pitch-out at the last moment before hitting the turf after being upset by an Eastern Michigan defender. Meece was an ace performer on the pitch-out play as he ran the option type offense.

Following the mudbath at Wesleyan, the Redbirds returned to McCormick Gym to clean up before the annual Goodwill Dance. Pressing business was at hand; and before all the mud was wiped off, the squad named senior co-captain Howie Scheidt as the year's Most Valuable Player. Scheidt's brilliant line work at tackle was one of the bright spots in the season. Halfback Dean Puyear drew acclaim as the leading ground gainer and top scorer. The speedy back piled up a total of 546 yards in 109 carries to average five yards every time he got hold of the ball. Puyear's scoring lead came on six touchdowns for 30 points. Puyear was named to share co-captain duties with center Tom Hillesheim for next season's grid action. If anyone were to be singled out as a star for the year, it would have to be the entire defensive team. The Birds on many occasions stopped highly rated offensives in their tracks.

Junior halfback Stimeling is hauled down on the goal line as he scores his second TD of the day during the Birds' 14-12 loss to Eastern Illinois.

Junior Varsity Football

State Normal's B football squad broke even for the season as they gained victories over Western Illinois twice and Northern Illinois once while losing to LaSalle-Peru-Oglesby Junior College once and Eastern Illinois twice. The Bees opened their season in a night game at LaSalle and, in spite of the fact that they threatened several times, the LPO defense tightened and the Birds failed to score. Against Western, the reserves racked up scores of 22-14 and 23-8. The first victory over the reserve Leathernecks came at Macomb. Friday afternoon games at McCormick saw the Redbirds notch victories over the same Western squad and Northern Illinois. The Birds had to stave off a late rally by the Huskies to emerge 26-20 victors. In the Birds' encounter with Western at Macomb, a last second pass from regular quarterback Larry Little hit back, Bill Stimeling, to give Normal the one touchdown edge. Cross Country

State Normal's cross country team piled up a 12-2 dual mark for the season as the Cogdalmen won their last eight meets while losing only to Wheaton and Eastern Illinois along the way. The Redbird field runners notched fourth place in both the IAC meet and the Illinois Cross Country Association meet. Jim Tyree led the Birds to second place in a marathon at the Indianapolis Track Club. ISNU's balanced team scoring completely dominated opposition as the Redbirds rolled over Quincy College and Bradley University twice and beat every IAC school at least once. However, the hill and dalers failed to bunch together in the conference meet. Even though they had beaten all the other conference schools in dual competition, they didn't get the points necessary to get better than fourth. Low score wins in cross country, and 15 is the lowest possible score. Out of the last seven meets the Birds had scores of 17, 16, 16, 17, and 15.

State Normal's track and cross country coach Joe Cogdal strolls across the Kappa Golf Course circuit during one of the Redbirds' home meets. The ISNU mentor has guided successful teams at Normal for several years.

Wrestling

Gene Hill's Redbird grapplers battled their way to four dual victories, third place in the Illinois Invitational and the Wheaton Invitational, and fourth place in the Interstate Conference Meet at Carbondale. The Birds, off to a good start, fell after first semester ineligibility dropped three members from the squad. Conference champ Wally Hess continued his dominance of the 167 and 177 pound classes. Wrestling in the 177 pound event, the junior wrestler won all but one of his matches on his way to first place in the IIAC meet. Hess had won the crown twice before, once in the 167 division. Other Birds gaining consistent wins were Bob Speier, Dave Sheridan, Don LaFond, Kenny and Reggie Weaver, and Bob Rick. Hess and Sheridan represented State Normal at the NAIA tournament held at DeKalb in the early spring. The Hillmen finished the season in Michigan, gaining a clean sweep against the northern conference schools after dumping Wabash in the last McCormick meet of the season.

Kenny Weaver, right, scrappy 123 pound Redbird grappler, battles Navy Pier's Tom Hayes. Weaver went on to win the meet on a decision, 4-0.

VARSVITY BASKETBALL (IAC CHAMPIONS)

Varsity Basketball

From the very beginning everyone knew, except perhaps a few surprised opponents, that this would be a great ball club. Coach James Collic, in his second year at State Normal, twisted his white towel through nine straight victories before his charges dropped a contest at Macomb against defending champions Western Illinois. Before the season was over, Collic would torture his towel through 24 victories and five defeats in a campaign that extended to the Promised Land, Kansas City, and a chance at the NAIA trophy. The Redbirds won the coveted IAC championship along the way as they beat every conference opponent twice with the exception of Western and Southern Illinois.

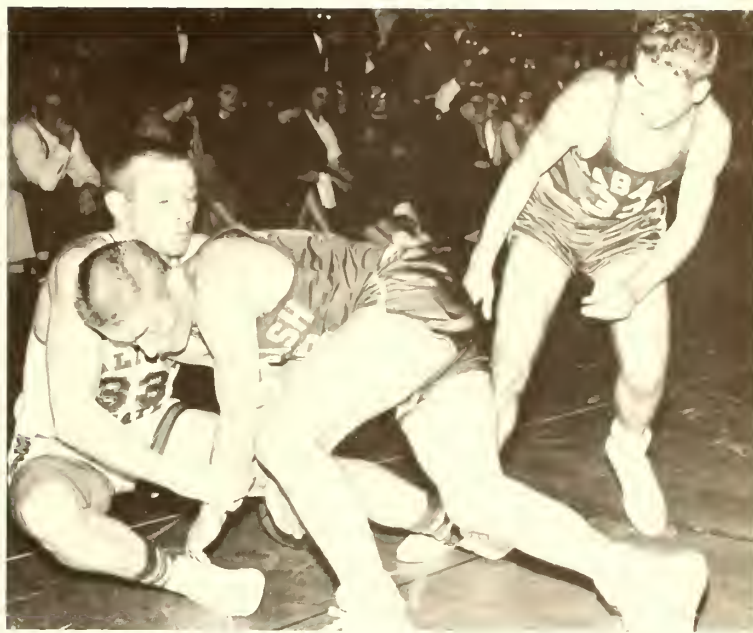

Strangely enough, none of the team can be singled out as a star. This was a team. A run-down of conference statistics bears this out: In team offense, second. In team defense, second. In field goal percentage, first. In free throw percentage, first. The starting five for the majority of the season all scored in double figures. That same starting five took first, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth in conference field goal percentage.

Dave Schertz and Ed Koch, both in their last year of action for State Normal, battle for a rebound against Southern Illinois' Seymour Bryson. The Birds led all the way to stop the Salukis, 81-68, in the first conference game of the year.

If any individual would have to be singled out as most beneficial to the Redbird cause, it would have to be Ron English. At 6-7 the Detroit transfer gave the Birds the height they needed to battle the other conference giants. With the big man in there, the front line of Schertz, Koch, Shaw, and Parker could operate at its maximum. For the first five games of the second semester, the ISNU powerhouse hit the century mark four times. The champs won eleven games in a row to be stopped only by national champion Tennessee A & I in the quarter-finals at Kansas City. 1958-59—a great season, a great team.

Sophomore Lindell Hnisinga, a stand-out reservist for the Redbirds, struggles with a Wabash College opponent during the 101-78 Redbird victory over the non-conference foes from Indiana.

Ron English gets the tip on a jump-ball situation at Wesleyan's Memorial Gymnasium. The Redbirds overpowered the Titans, 84-60, in the second encounter with the cross-town rivals.

Captain Dave Schertz drives past a Western Illinois defender during the Redbirds' last home game of the season. Schertz, playing his last year for the Red and White, was one of the top performers for the Birds. During the NAIA playoffs held at Normal, the veteran forward was named to the District 20 All-Star team.

Jerry Odell, one of the leading rebounders for Jim Collie's squad and a steady scorer, battles to get around a stubborn guard during a McCormick Gymnasium conference contest with Northern Illinois. The Birds won at home, 100-72, against the Huskies after coming from behind to edge the DeKalb crew, 67-65, earlier in the season.

The conference champion State Normal Redbirds break onto the floor to open court warfare with visiting Eastern Illinois. The highly charged ISNU quintet, urged by a wildly cheering, red-bedecked crowd, raced past the Panthers, 104-82, to complete its dominance over league foes in one of the most successful seasons in Normal basketball history.

Jubilant Redbird fans leap to their feet as ISNU defeats Western Illinois, 94-85, to clinch a berth in the NAIA playoff tourney.

Junior Varsity Basketball

State Normal's phenomenal freshmen, with able help from a few sophomores, streaked to an 11-3 season record, losing only to LaSalle-Peru-Oglesby Junior College twice and Northern Illinois once. The Bees averaged 89.1 points per game while yielding an average of 83.3 to their opponents. The reserves passed the century mark four times, once in a 110-73 slaughter of an independent from Atlanta. A six game winning streak after the season's opening loss to LPO put the junior Redbirds in contention for their successful season. Northern snapped the streak in a closely-fought battle at the DeKalb field house. The lightning-fast offense engineered by coach Warren Crews proved too much for the eleven defeated teams. The B squad, a good indicator of future varsity squads, defeated conference reserve squads five times, swamping Western and Eastern twice. A couple of the Bees improved enough during the season to be moved up to the varsity, and Bob Sorrell and Keith Rieger made the trip to Kansas City with the Redbirds' NAIA tournament squad.

Freshman Keith Rieger caroms off a Lewis College defender as he lays in a bucket to aid the 83-69 ISNU victory over the Chicago team. Rieger was moved up to the varsity late in the season to bolster Jim Collie's bench strength.

Redbird Bob Milanich nears the finish in the 200-yard backstroke event against Illinois Wesleyan. The senior swimmer led the Birds to two victories over the Titans.

Diver Ron Guenther hits the peak in diving competition against Eastern's Panthers in a Metcalf Pool meet early in the season. Guenther shared diving honors with teammate Dave Schindlbeck.

Swimming

State Normal's tank squad, under Coach Archie Harris, racked up a 6-5 record for the season and took fourth place in the Interstate Intercollegiate Conference meet. The Redbird swimmers broke into a fast start, dropping Bradley University, Illinois Wesleyan, and Eastern Illinois twice before meeting defeat against Western Illinois. After the Christmas break, the Birds ran into trouble and dropped four straight before they hit the victory column again against Wesleyan. Consistent wins by Co-Captains Pat Dowling, Dave Schindlbeck, Ron Guenther, Bob Milanich, and Jerry Schieber kept the Birds above the .500 mark for the season.

Men's Intramurals

An active men's intramural program exists on the ISNU campus. Football, basketball, softball, swimming, table tennis, volleyball, and other sports provide a well-rounded list of activities for each season of the school year. Working closely with the University Health and Physical Education Department, the intramural program offers male students the opportunity to release accumulations of excess energy in league competitions and post season tournaments. The intramural program is vital in ISNU's efforts to make it possible for many men to enjoy active athletic competition.

Here it comes — Batter, catcher, and umpire display intramural competitive spirit as they await the next pitch in one of the program's spring softball games.

Round-ball — In the winter a young man's fancy turns to basketball, one of the most popular of intramural sports. These boys put their all into the game as they go for the bucket.

The camera stops the fast action of an intramural tennis match as one of the players strives desperately to return the ball.

Many come, all are chosen in the university's intramural program as is evidenced in the full house of volleyballers.

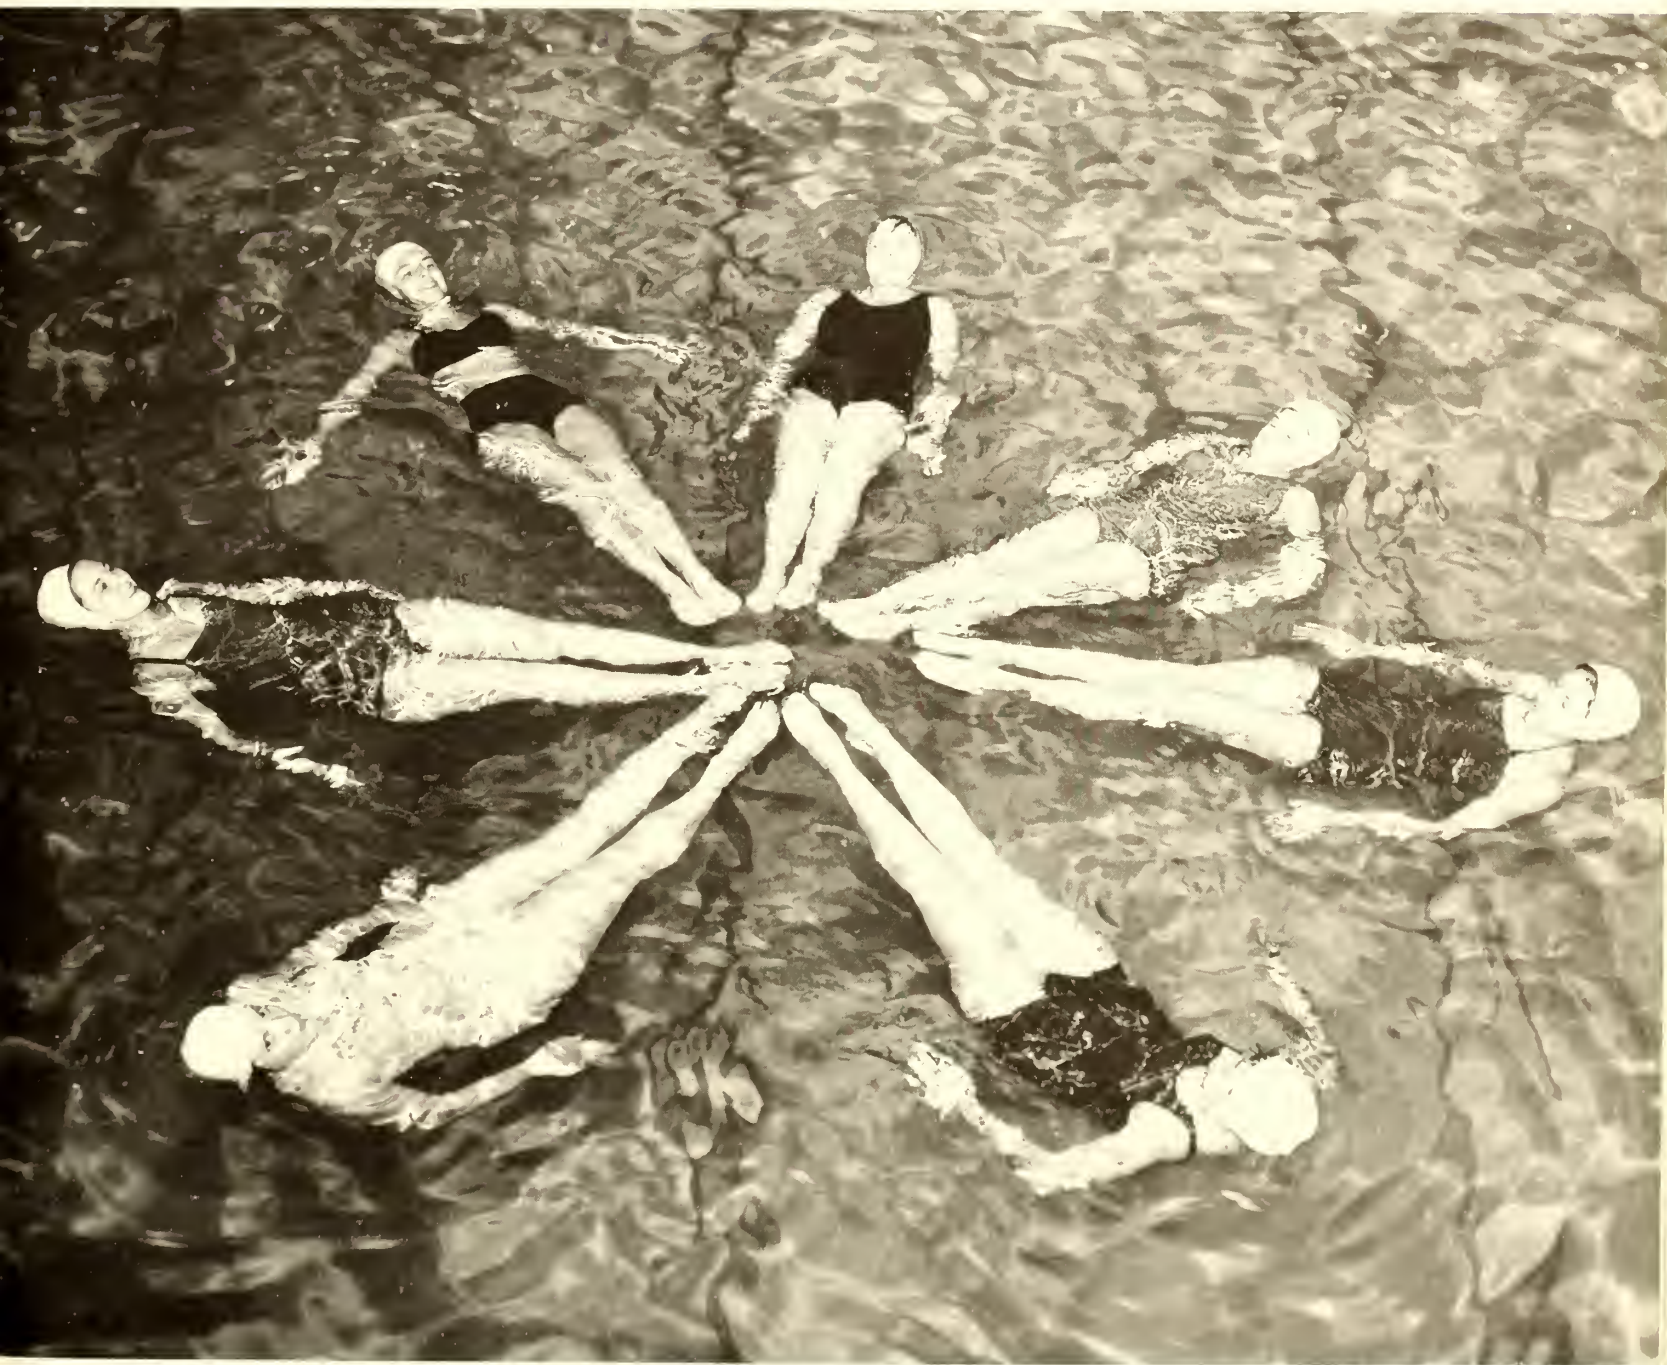

"Bird, take flight," seems to be an appropriate comment in this particular situation. Badminton is another of the sports which help keep students active.

Women's Intramurals

The women's intramural program at ISNU, under the supervision of the Women's Recreation Association, gives university girls a chance to develop skills in field hockey, softball, swimming, badminton, and other sports. Since team membership is arranged so as not to allow a predominance of physical education students, every girl has an equal opportunity to compete and display her athletic prowess. Each year a sports day brings girls from other schools to the ISNU campus where they meet for a day of fun and friendly rivalry.

Water intramurals always draw a good group, some of which are shown cutting a pretty figure in the Metcalf pool.

N Club

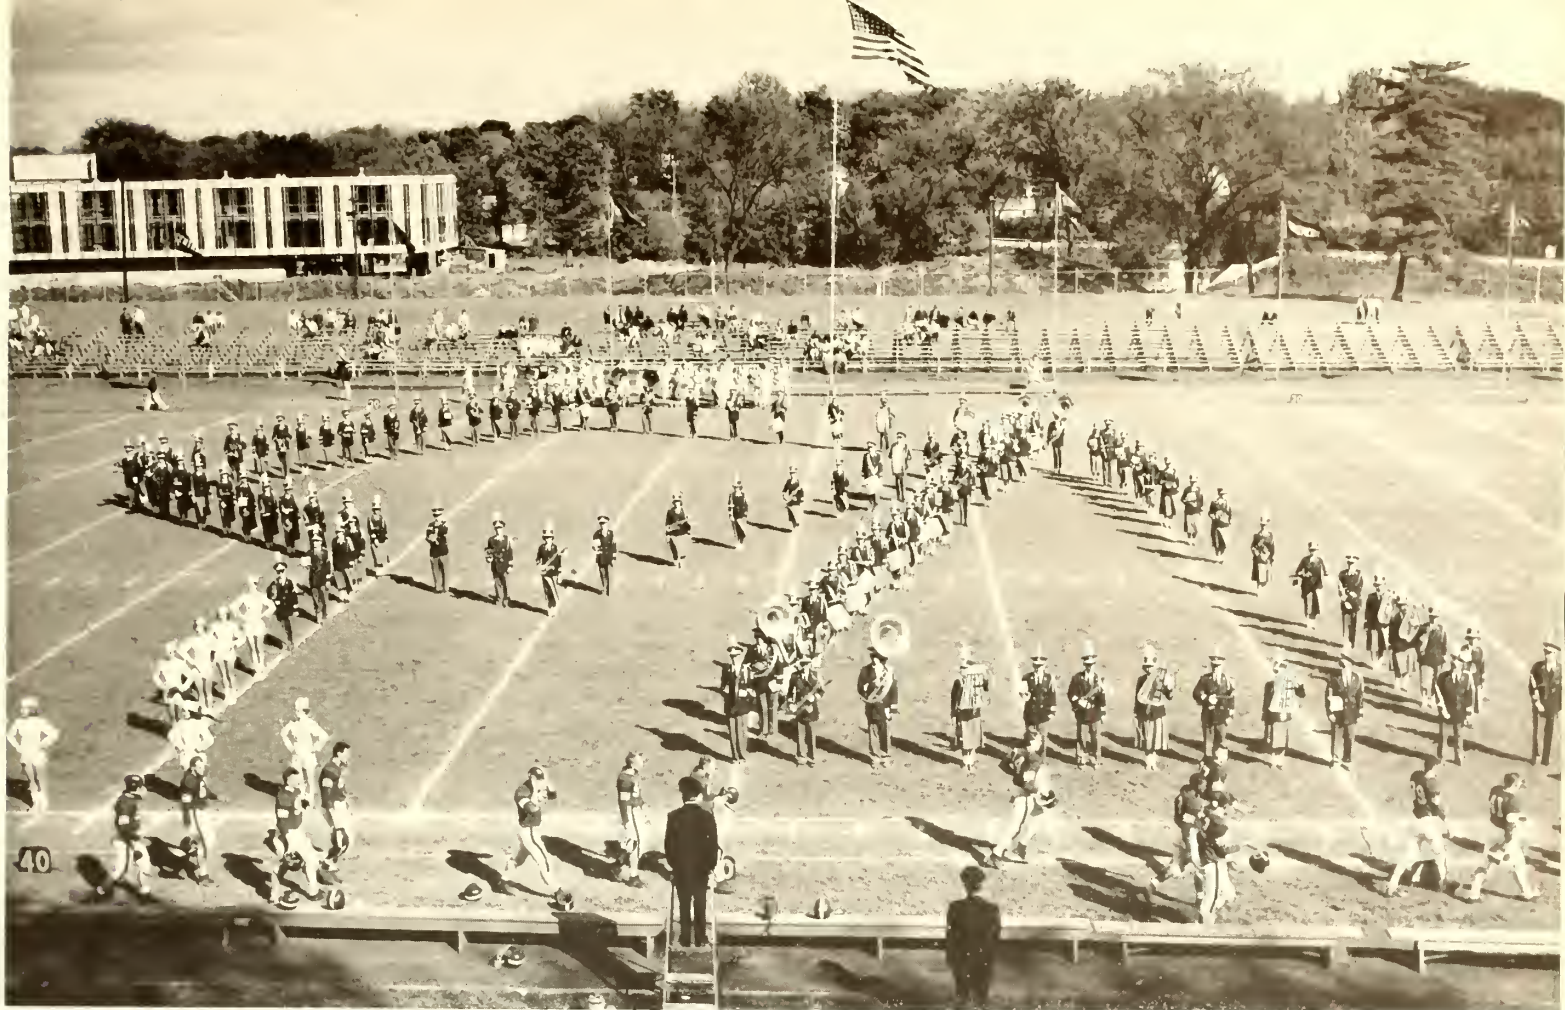

N Club, one of the most active men's organizations on campus, has for its members those who have earned a major letter in a varsity sport. For the members, their busy year started with a bang as they sponsored Homecoming Queen elections and provided escorts for the Queen and her court during the parade and game. To N Club's president falls the pleasant task of crowning the Queen at the Homecoming dance. Responsibility for planning the Goodwill Dance, hosting the McLean County basketball tournament, and selling concessions at all ball games is part of the year's work. The presentation of a darning machine to the school's athletic department rounded out the season's schedule.

Going seriously about the task of counting ballots, this sextet of N Club members tally votes for the Homecoming Queen election.

Students interested in becoming librarians are eligible for membership in Alpha Beta Alpha, honorary library fraternity. This year the organization played host to representatives from as far away as California, Alabama, and Pennsylvania, as state chapters met on the ISNU campus for a national convention. Shelia Anderson of Mu, the local chapter, acted as honorary National Vice-President for the year. In addition, the fraternity sponsored a Homecoming Coffee Hour and a Christmas party.

Alpha Phi Omega

Alpha Phi Omega, honorary scouting fraternity, is a campus service group which went through the throes of reorganization. To get back into the swing of things and to promote Alpha Phi Omega's desire to serve the Boy Scouts, the campus and the community, members acted as hosts for the Junior Academy of Science Fair held on campus. Another project of the organization was participation in a work weekend at Camp Heffernan, the local Boy Scout camp.

Betterment of education in agriculture is the aim of Alpha Tau Alpha, honorary agriculture fraternity. Eligibility for membership includes at least a sophomore standing at ISNU, a major in agriculture, and maintaining a specified scholastic average. During Homecoming weekend, the group sponsored a barbecue at the University Farm. Highlighting the year's activities was the recognition of the outstanding student in corn production at the Holbert Medal banquet.

Blackfriars

From their headquarters at their co-op house, members of Kappa Lambda chapter of Blackfriars, 60 strong, continued to promote interest in dramatic production. The Blackfriars used the proceeds from two yearly shows to finance scholarships, not only among the members but for other deserving men on campus as well. Major functions which the organization sponsored during the year included the Blackfriar Playboy Party and the Mardi Gras Masquerade.

To foster interest in business teacher training and to encourage social spirit—these are the purposes of the Business Education Club. Two joint meetings were held, one with Pi Omega Pi, honorary business fraternity, and the other with the Wesleyan Business Club. The club supervised house decorations for Homecoming, provided student leaders for Orientation Week, and furnished Christmas and bulletin board decorations at Cook Hall.

"Modern Canterbury Pilgrims," which tells of the lives of important Episcopalians, was the theme of this year's discussion groups of the Canterbury Club of ISNU. The group, a segment of the National Canterbury Association, took part in regional conventions, college retreats, and exchange meetings with other universities. Serving as chaplain is the Reverend F. H. O. Bowman.

Channing-Murray Foundation

In its first year of recognition as a campus organization, Channing-Murray Foundation pursued its scientific study of man and the universe from a naturalistic viewpoint. As religious liberals, its members held discussions at the dinner meetings on the cooperation between religions and the perfectability of man. Exchange meetings with a group from Champaign rounded out the Foundation's activities.

The Christian Science Organization is a small but active religious group on campus. Sponsoring a Homecoming breakfast for alumni, the organization followed up that activity with a lecture in November by J. Hamilton Lewis of Concord, New Hampshire, on "Christian Science Brings Freedom from Fear." In February, a lecture by Gertrude E. Velgute started the agenda for the second semester.

Cloverleaf Collegiate 4-H Club

Being a first-year fledgling as a recognized organization on campus, the Cloverleaf Collegiate 4-H Club nevertheless had a very eventful year. Each member was an active participant and worked on an individual project which was displayed at the achievement show at the end of the year. Unity of the club was maintained through a music project to which all members contributed by giving talks or demonstrations at the monthly meetings.

Elementary Education Club

It has often been said that quality is more important than quantity. But the Elementary Education Club, one of the largest on campus, correlates its massiveness with quality, balancing the scales between these two powers. Activities contributing to the value of the organization included many hours spent helping the boys at Victory Hall, making pom poms for Homecoming, and participating in a Talent Night. Supplementing the program were talks, such as "Art in the Elementary School," by Dr. F. Louis Hoover.

Delving into English literature for a Homecoming house decoration theme, the English Club chose the line "When shall we three meet again . . ." from Shakespeare's Macbeth. Returning to the present, the club featured as one of its speakers Dr. L. M. Miller, who showed color slides of the various sectors of Moscow and other cities taken during his recent trip through Russia.

EUB Fellowship

Inspiration for the body, the mind, and the soul was offered through the activities of the Evangelical United Brethren Fellowship. One of the unique activities of the year was a meeting in which the members traveled from the Student Union to the Grace EUB Church to the First EUB Church. Speakers from these churches gave devotional topics at the various meetings. A picnic at Lake Bloomington, which included boat rides, was among the many gatherings of the Fellowship.

"Let me see, how did we do that Cuban rhumba? . . . or samba? . . . or was it the conga?" Yes, ISNU's Foreign Language Club goes in for dancing and singing as well as conversing in Spanish, French, German, and Latin. Members of the club, who may be either majors or minors in a language or just merely interested in one, interviewed Maria Gamboa, a student at ISNU from Costa Rica. While speaking entirely in Spanish, these students learned many things about the social customs of Maria's country.

The Gamma Phi Circus is one of the most eagerly awaited yearly events held on campus. After rehearsing for several months on Monday nights, the members and pledges then choose specific acts and concentrate on them. Some of the acts utilize clowns, flying ladders, roller skates, unicycles, tumbling and balancing. The troupe is trying to recreate the excitement of the Big Top; the enjoyment on the faces of the audience is their reward for a job well done.

Gamma Theta Upsilon

Alpha Chapter of Gamma Theta Upsilon seeks to further interest in the study, research, and teaching of geography. This year a Homecoming banquet was held for alumni and new members at which Dr. C. W. Designed to increase friendships, leadership, co-operation, and interest in home economics, the Home Economics Club strives to fulfill these purposes through its yearly activities. Programs for the monthly meetings this year included, for example, a demonstration of party decorating. The club, consisting of over 100 members, sent delegates to the Province workshop in Chicago. During their two-day stay in the Windy City, the delegates discussed plans, ideas, and problems of the home economics curriculum.

"Get your Student Directory!" was the selling line shouted out by all the members of the Industrial Arts Club. Popular club activities also included entering a float in the Homecoming parade, meeting with alumni, and helping with the annual High School Industrial Arts Roundup. The qualifications, which state each member must be either a major or minor in industrial arts, give many students a chance to participate in this active organization.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

To know Christ and to make Him known is the motto of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. This non-denominational group aided the Home Sweet Home Mission, Bloomington, one Friday each month. In addition, members met once each week for Bible study and for social fellowship. IVCF affiliates have as their goals the promotion of fellowship and the promotion of the growth of the Christian to bring him closer to Christ. To fulfill these aims, the group sponsored conferences where students from other universities gathered to worship.

What problems do beginning teachers face? This topic was discussed at the monthly meetings of Iota Lambda Sigma, honorary industrial arts fraternity. Those participating in these discussions included area teachers, such as Mr. Roger Herberts of Normal Community High School. An April initiation and banquet completed the year's activities for the 12 active members of Iota Lambda Sigma on campus.

Jesters

Actors and actresses are not the only ones who go into the making of a production. Every play offers other activities, such as advertising, make-up, scene painting, and properties. By working in the plays, students earn credit toward membership in Jesters, ISNU's dramatics club. Producing the winter play and two College Day plays, participating in the Spring Stunt Show, and traveling to Chicago to see stage plays are some of the Jester projects.

"Education is the Key" was the theme carried out by Kappa Delta Epsilon, honorary education sorority, in its year's activities. The program was highlighted by such speakers as Dr. Arlan Helgeson, whose topic was "Teaching of Controversial Issues." At the Kappa Delta Epsilon national convention in Chicago, Epsilon, ISNU's chapter, was awarded the outstanding chapter trophy.

A special project of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary education fraternity, was a tea in March honoring students of high scholastic standing. This program, as well as the spring banquet, the sophomore award, and the get-acquainted hour in the fall, served to stimulate those students who attained a high scholastic average in both education and general education courses to seek membership in this honorary society.

Kappa Mu Epsilon

Alpha Chapter of Kappa Mu Epsilon celebrated its 25th birthday this year as the first honorary mathematics fraternity in the state. Regular monthly meetings were interspersed with a Homecoming breakfast, a Christmas party, participation in the Spring Carnival, and a spring banquet held at the same time as the annual mathematics conference on campus. Membership in the organization indicates recognition of scholarship in mathematics and gives opportunities for social growth.

Six cookie sales a year provided an opportunity for ISNU students to appease their sweet tooth, thanks to the skill of the members of Kappa Omicron Phi, honorary home economics sorority. With approximately 20 active members taking part in its activities, Kappa Omicron Phi held two yearly pledge services, a Homecoming tea for alumni, and a founder's day banquet.

Lowell Mason Club

As its major project, Lowell Mason Club presented the operetta Call Me Madam in the spring. This satire about political parties made viewers of the light comedy realize the sarcasm directed toward political parties. The unique decorations and theme of the Lowell Mason float won first prize in the Homecoming parade. The title was "As Siegfried Slew the Dragon, So the Redbirds Shall Slay the Huskies!" The Lowell Mason Club has now merged with the Music Educators National Conference, Chapter 30.

Lutheran Club

Getting together to work, play, and learn constitutes the calendar of events for the Lutheran Club. Dates which stand out are those of the Homecoming breakfast, work nights for the Homecoming float, the annual banquet, and cost suppers. Members united through the Word in a weekly Bible study. This year the Lutheran Club sponsored a showing of the Martin Luther film on campus.

Maize Grange, a combined agriculture-home economics organization, earned money for the club by cleaning out the University Farm after breed associations held sales. These profits were split with Alpha Tau Alpha, honorary agriculture fraternity. Activities were highlighted by the Lucky Silver Dollar Dance in April. The year's events ended with a late spring picnic.

Men's Physical Education Club

Newly reorganized, the Men's Physical Education Club swung into an active year when 25 members attended the IAHPER convention in Peoria. Ninety charter members were initiated into the organization and began such projects as the awarding of four yearly scholarships and helping with the conducting of the annual cheerleading clinic in the fall. Sponsoring the showing of Big 10 and professional football films and hearing professional speakers in the field of health and physical education, such as Dr. Arley Gillett, president-elect of IAHPER, provided a full season's program for the members.

The NAACP worked this year to establish closer and better inter-racial relationships. It had several projects — establishing a partial scholarship fund, conducting a survey to determine the extent of segregational feeling on campus, and discovering the legal right of business men with regard to discrimination against minority groups. On the social side, the group sponsored several informal campus dances and a Christmas party.

Watching the blood circulation of a huskie while a fly drew blood was a phenomenon for the onlooking Cardinals. This description refers to the Naturalist Club's Homecoming house decoration theme, "Huskies Taste Good Like a Victory Should." On a field trip to Braidwood, members observed and collected fern fossils, and at each meeting they discussed interesting subjects such as marine life in Florida and African safaris.

Naturalist Club

Typical of the program offerings by Newman Club, an organization for all Catholic students on campus, was a speech by Dr. Joseph Menez of Loyola University, who spoke on "The Race for the Presidency." Besides having a coffee hour after Mass each Sunday, the club sponsored several dances, picnics, Corporate Communion, and a Pre-Cana Conference. All Newman members worked toward the goal of building a student Newman Center in the near future.

Priests, worshipers, and entertainers were the characters portrayed in the Orchesis spring concert, "Rite of Fall," a satire on football. Because modern dance is an interpretation of life, Orchesis members create imaginative moods to capture the audience's attention. Original costumes and composition brought an air of reality to the dance fantasies. Junior and senior Orchesis members participated in presenting this concert and the Master Dance Lesson, which was held for students from Kewanee.

Physical Science Club

In an effort to promote interest in science, the Physical Science Club concentrates its program schedule on scientific topics. Speakers included ones from the ISNU faculty, such as Dr. Aki Yokosawa, plus speakers from Argonne National Laboratory and a Bloomington chemical plant. In addition to regular attendance at monthly meetings, members enjoyed outside activities, including their November chili supper and a picnic at Lake Bloomington.

Pi Gamma Mu

It is a challenge to meet the requirements demanded for membership in Pi Gamma Mu, the honorary social science organization. The forty-two members had the opportunity to hear such speakers as criminologist Bernard Robinson, whose topic was "The Reduction of Criminality as the Primary Objective of the Correctional Process." Members also had an opportunity to express their views through various panel discussions that were held during the school year.

To recognize outstanding achievement in forensics is the purpose of Pi Kappa Delta, honorary forensics fraternity. During the year, the group sponsored its annual speech tournament in which college students from all over the United States competed. Qualifications for membership in the organization included participation in five intercollegiate debates and in five discussions. A candidate must have the unanimous vote of the members to become an affiliate of Pi Kappa Delta.

Pi Omega Pi

Pi Omega Pi, the honorary business fraternity, consists of business majors who maintain a 3.1 average in business education and a 2.5 average or over in other academic subjects. The club held meetings once each month to discuss such topics as internal auditing, business scholarships, and accomplishments in the business field. In December two club members attended the Sixteenth Biennial Delegates Convention at the Palmer House in Chicago. Other club activities included a Christmas party, a joint meeting in March with the Business Education Club, and the annual club picnic in May.

Science Club sponsored speakers from various fields for its monthly programs this year. Such speakers as Dr. W. W. Sawyer, who is one of the top ten geometers in the United States, and Donald Sehn, who spoke on "Various Satellite Radio Tracking Techniques," contributed to the variety of topics covered. On the social side, members were entertained at parties which included a November barbecue.

Dancing with a hula hoop, or a bucket, or an umbrella—plus a partner—was a phenomenon of the Hallowe'en Hoedown sponsored by the Shufflin' Shoes Club. This group sponsored two all-school dances, one during Orientation Week, and the other in January. Several members attended the Illinois Callers' Association convention in November and also the Annual Swing Ding of the Callers' Association in May. Shufflin' Shoes is an active member of the Illinois Federation of Square Dance Clubs.

Sigma Tau Delta

Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity, has as its purpose the promotion of interest and activity in creative writing. A major activity is the publishing of the Triangle, ISNU's literary magazine. The qualifications, which state that any junior or senior English major with a B average in English courses is eligible for entrance upon the submission of a short story, poem, or literary paper, serve as stimulation for all the creative English majors on campus.

Social Science Club is best known on campus for its sponsorship of the Homecoming parade. This included arranging the floats in correct order and planning a suitable route for them to follow. At the Homecoming game, the club had its Birdie Balloon Blast, a spectacular display of bright red balloons which were released by the audience during half-time. This year, Social Science Club members heard two prominent speakers: Mr. Eugene Moody, City Manager of Bloomington, and Mr. Paul Powell, Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Illinois General Assembly.

Special Education Club

Helping handicapped children enjoy a full life is one of the ideals of the Special Education Club. Working in association with the Lion's Club, the group sponsored a weekly "Y" night. The organization brings together those working in the field of special education with the goal of aiding the exceptional child and adult, and of acquainting others with the development of the exceptional child beyond the limits of the campus.

Student NEA

"We're off!" was the cry as the SNEA members boarded a chartered bus for an educational, all-day trip. During the year the Student National Education Association had varied programs consisting of student-leader and teacher panels and of such speakers as Wendell Kennedy, IEA state co-ordinator. Other activities included attending the SNEA State Convention and various college workshops, handling registration for conventions held at ISNU, and guiding visiting high school students on campus tours.

Participation in a wide selection of dramatic activities results in eligibility for membership in Theta Alpha Phi, national dramatics fraternity. Membership is determined by having at least two major or four minor acting roles, three major crew chairmanships, or any equivalent combination. Theta Alpha Phi held monthly dinner meetings at the homes of students or faculty members in the speech department, and sponsored the spring play.

University Club

University Club is the organization that all ISNU males automatically join upon arriving on campus. The organization started its activities during Orientation Week by providing watermelons for the watermelon feast. Sponsoring the Sweetheart Ball, the Stunt Show, Dad's Day, Mom's Day, the Hood Ball, and the Christmas Service, U Club paralleled these events by chartering buses to Macomb for the ISNU-Western basketball game.

Wesley Foundation completed a year's program that provided a diversity of activities. Ranging from the religious to the vocational to the social, Wesley members met for Communion services during Advent and Lent and two overnight retreats at Lake Bloomington, attended a state vocational conference sponsored by the Methodist Student Movement, and held weekly music hours, Tuesday "Tookie" times (tea and cookies), and Sunday suppers.

Buzz sessions, entertainment in the western style, and a presentation of desert fashions are examples of the light side of the Women's League National Convention held at Tempe, Arizona, in the spring. A check mark added to the successful campus activities sponsored by WL was the program fully to orient freshman women through the guidance of Big Sisters and through information from the Campus Cues.

Women's League

Women's Physical Education Club

Is getting acquainted with your department members difficult when you first arrive on campus? The members of the Women's Physical Education Club tried to ease the strain by sponsoring a get-acquainted hour with its freshman majors and Big Sisters. Initiation, panel discussions, and joint meetings with physical education clubs from other colleges, plus co-sponsorship with Gamma Phi of the Danish Gymnastics Team, were program offerings made by the organization.

"There's always fair weather when good friends get together." Whether good friends cause fair weather or vice versa is unimportant, for these two conditions go hand in hand for WRA. The fun and fellowship of this organization is offered to all women at ISNU, and is stimulated through such activities as swim parties, free eoke hours, play nights, camping trips, and ice skating. This year the annual Illinois Athletic Federation of College Women convention was held at Lake Bloomington. Looking over the horizon, WRA has had a year of many sunny days.

Women's Recreation Association

You do not have to be a Democrat in order to join the Young Democrats. In fact, there are seven Republicans in the club who will verify this statement. The organization, an affiliated member of the Democratic Federation of Illinois, has several of its club members, elected by a convention of 500 students, on the state council. During the year the members heard Representative Paul Simon from Madison and Representative Paul Edward from Chicago.

Young Republicans

The Young Republicans, a newly organized group on campus, has as its goal the promotion of interest among students in local, national, and international politics. Besides participation in school activities such as Homecoming, the club heard speakers on topics of political importance. Representative of the program offered by the Young Republicans was a talk by Miss Alice Ebel of the social science department on "The Party Organization in Illinois."

A cherry tree planted on campus, a gift of gratitude to the YWCA for book money given to a university in Japan, is symbolic of the Y. Like a tree, its activities branched off into many fruitful experiences, which included the celebration of the Y's 86th birthday, a festive Homecoming mum sale, a Christmas visit to a home for the aged, a week of fellowship and study at Lake Geneva, and attendance at the Sixth National Student Assembly at Champaign, a conference held only once each fourth year. As the branches of the tree grow, so do the members of YWCA—"through a growing knowledge of God."

Senior Advisory Board

Capitalizing on the nationwide hula-hoop craze, the Senior Advisory Board opened its year's activities with an October "Hula Hop." Based on an idea fostered by class president Chuck Leech, Senior Advisory Board joined with the other three classes in co-sponsoring the January "Sno-Ball," hoping to establish this dance as an annual affair.

Consideration was given to planning for graduation and Commencement with special emphasis on the choice of a fitting gift from the senior class to the University. Other activities of the Senior Advisory Board included participation in Homecoming, Women's League Spring Carnival, the Spring Stunt Show, and Senior Skip Day.

Talking informally about Senior Advisory Board plans are Chuck Leech, President; Carol Grumish, Secretary; Dr. Sands, Sponsor; Pat Grant, Treasurer; and Wayne French, Vice-President.

Members of the Senior Class of 1959 who excelled in scholastic achievement, leadership, and extra-curricular activities were recognized as Outstanding Seniors by the Student Council. These 24, maintaining a grade average of 2.75, qualified for this honor by being full-time students at the University during their senior year and by having earned 24 hours of credit at ISNU previously. Plaques were presented by the Student Council and their names were recorded on the "Outstanding Senior Roll" displayed during Commencement Week. Parents, the Council, and faculty honored those chosen at a reception and tea.

Junior Advisory Board

As key organizer and planner of activities for the junior class, the Junior Advisory Board highlighted the first week of school in the fall by sponsoring an all-school Kick-Off Dance. Homecoming time found the juniors' float winning first place in the walking division of the parade with its entry depicting Northern's Huskies as nothing better than sled dogs for ISNU's Redbirds.

As with every class, the juniors sponsored a booth for the Women's League Spring Carnival. A car wash, used as a money-making device by the busy juniors, led the calendar of spring events.

Sophomore Advisory Board

Handicapped by the loss of its president at the beginning of the school year, the Sophomore Advisory Board nevertheless managed to have an active year as the governing body of the sophomore class. Under the leadership of its three remaining officers, the group sponsored "Nebbish Nite," an informal dance following the ISNU-Eastern basketball game in February.

The Advisory Board shared in the co-sponsorship of the "Sno-Ball," a four-class project. In addition, Board members entered a Homecoming float and participated in the Spring Stunt Show and the Women's League Carnival. However, their major project was the Sophomore Cotillion, using the theme "A Colonial Garden."

Chuckling over some of the amusing sidelights of Sophomore Advisory Board duties are Bill Sheppard, President; Joyce Moore, Secretary; Dr. Yedor, Sponsor; and Karen Willsey, Treasurer.

Freshman Advisory Board

The Sturdy Thirty—these were the members of the Freshman Class Advisory Board, governing body of the first class of the new century at ISNU and the largest ever enrolled on campus. Working through the combined efforts of all four classes, they helped co-sponsor the “Sno-Ball,” a semi-formal dance held in early December. One of the most successful activities of the group was the selling of “Go, ISNU” megaphones during basketball season. The Board members’ first taste of a big project came with the Women’s League Spring Carnival and their booth, “Hitchin’ Post.” In February the class sponsored the “Saturday Night Stomp,” an all-school record dance. Another spring event was the freshman class party.

Student Teaching

Student teaching is the realization of four years of preparation, an opportunity for seniors to put into practice the methods of teaching best suited for their special field. While much of the student teaching is done off-campus, many departments concentrate on assignments at Metcalf Elementary School, Fairchild Hall of Special Education, and University High School. These student teaching assignments are the most rewarding experiences future teachers can have. An attempt is made to make practice teaching as close to a real-life teaching situation as possible while providing competent guidance from experienced critic teachers.

Lois Sutter gives individual attention to a handicapped child as he struggles to master the typewriter keyboard.

Industrial Arts

With seven shops and laboratories located in the Industrial Arts Building and Annex, the Industrial Arts Department is equipped with typical hand and power tools that provide opportunities for manipulative experiences essential to successful teaching in that field. Under the direction of Dr. Ray Stombaugh, the department prepares teachers of crafts; graphic arts and printing; of architectural and mechanical drawing; electricity; metalwork; and of woodwork and general shop for junior and senior high schools. The development of scouting programs, hobby interests, camp and playground crafts goes hand in hand with specialized training in industrial arts.

Library Science

"We need librarians!" This cry, according to Miss Eleanor Welch, head of the Library Science Department, is a common one. Each year almost 50 times as many requests for librarians are made as there are people eligible to fill open positions. The purpose of the Library Science Department is to train these needed librarians. To be a teacher-librarian in a grade school or high school, one must have a bachelor's degree with a minor in Library Science; but to be a librarian of a school, a university, a special library, or a public library, one must have a graduate degree in Library Science. Several courses such as School Library Functions, Processing of Library Material, and Evaluation of Books for Youth are part of the training for future librarians.

Retiring Faculty

Ten members of the faculty are retiring this year, ten members who have accumulated an amazing total of 277 years of service to ISNU among them. Their devotion to the University and their contributions to the advancement of Illinois State Normal as a highly rated teacher training institution can not be measured in years alone. Their worth to the school is invaluable.

Many departments will feel the loss when these faculty members retire. Education, home economics, social science, speech, English, library science, and foreign language will be affected. Of the ten, two will be retiring as heads of departments—Dr. Jennie Whitten and Dr. F. L. D. Holmes.

Under the able instruction of these faculty members, students at ISNU for many years have been inspired to "gladly lerne, and gladly teche."

Agriculture

Operating as an agricultural laboratory, University Farm has the necessary buildings for demonstrations of better farming methods and for experimental work. Under the leadership of Dr. Harvey S. Woods, the Agriculture Department of ISNU has classrooms scattered over a wide campus area. These varied locations enable agriculture students to spend much time in observing and participating in a wide range of demonstrations, experiments, and comparative studies. During the four-year curriculum set up on a vocational agriculture plan, students develop agriculture skills of a practical nature.

As part of their many varied tasks as agriculture majors, two men examine a small cut on a pig's ear.

Art

Taking a giant step from one area on the campus to the other was the Art Department's main project of the year. The entire department, headed by Dr. Louis F. Hoover, moved from its old location in the Industrial Arts Building to the newly erected Centennial (Fine Arts) Building. Corresponding to the spatial expansion, an increase in major courses was offered. Establishing new quarters will be a reflection of what the department teaches through its two main purposes—to prepare special art teachers from the elementary to high school level, and to prepare elementary classroom teachers to present a program of creative art, especially in self-contained classrooms.

Leonard Presley contemplates the outcome of his art project as his skillful hands busily apply form to the unfinished job.

Biological Science

The range of laboratory studies in the area of biological science may extend from the lowly amoeba to the dissection of higher mammals and the human body. Members of the Biological Science Department, under the guidance of Dr. Robert Rilett, tramp fields, unearth fossils, study plants and animals in their native haunts, or make laboratory investigations upon the physiological processes of plants and animals. These studies encompass the basic training that provides experience with and understandings of the scientific, social, and economic implications in the areas of agriculture, forestry, wild life conservation, plant pathology, medicine, and veterinary science.

Business Education

When asked to name the campus department with the broadest occupational field, one could answer with conviction, "The Business Education Department." It prepares students for teaching, supervising, and administering all phases of business education in high schools and colleges. This broad field covers education in many phases, those needed by business employees and managers, consumers, and citizens. Students preparing for business education choose one of three sequences. Among research activities of the department, directed by Dr. Lewis R. Toll, are studies (for publication) of business subjects offered in Illinois high schools and the nature of the shorthand programs in these schools.

Education and Psychology

To help a teacher better understand modern youth in and out of school and to help future teachers develop a philosophy of living is the twofold goal of the Education and Psychology Department, under the leadership of the recently retired Dr. Chris A. De-Young. Great emphasis is placed on instruction in teaching methods as well as integrated courses in the field of psychology. Such electives as Experimental Psychology, Psychology of Adolescence, and Social Psychology sensitize students to social needs and problems. Introduction to Teaching, Education Psychology, Secondary Education, Philosophy of Education, and Student Teaching help to prepare students for actual classroom situations they will face.

Elementary Education

Sitting at her office desk, Dr. Helen Nance works out the problems of the Elementary Education Department. The department, divided into three main areas—Primary, Intermediate, or Secondary—enables students to choose from specialized courses. General courses are Child Growth and Development, General Psychology, Educational Psychology, and United States History. In the senior year the final phase is reached—student teaching. A student chooses a teaching area and then proceeds through the learning experience involving instructing and the making and grading of tests. Watching the child progress in mental and physical ability is a reward to be found in the field of elementary education.

English

The English Department, headed by Dr. Herbert Hiett, is one that touches nearly every student at ISNU. Included in the general education plan, the department this year provided English instruction for over 1,200 freshmen alone. One hundred sixty English majors and 65 minors are enrolled in the department's curriculum, which offers nearly 30 literature courses that provide liberal sequences in English, American, and general literature. Literature is supplemented by courses in grammar, writing, and a series of offerings designed to prepare students for teaching in journalism. The English Department tries to develop in all students the ability to read understandingly and to employ acceptable English in speaking and writing.

Understanding the philosophy presented by the author of a literature assignment brings a gaze of whimsical satisfaction to English major Suzanne Umbanhouer.

Foreign Language

—Como esta usted?—This typical Spanish greeting of "Hello, how are you?" is a familiar phrase to many students in the Foreign Language Department. This department, headed by Dr. Jenny Whitten, offers courses in four of the most important languages of today—Spanish, Latin, German, and French. Students are given a thorough background through the development of skills in listening, speaking, reading, and writing. More foreign language teachers are needed in our public schools than ever before, for as the world continues to grow smaller, knowledge of foreign languages is a necessity for international communication and understanding.

Al Maloney puzzles over a translation about El periquillo sarnoso—that's Spanish for a mangy little parrot to the uninitiated.

Geography

In keeping with the rapid progress of science and industry, new additions have been made this year in the Department of Geography, headed by Dr. Arthur W. Watterson. Cartography is now being offered to undergraduates, besides typical courses in Earth Science, Geology, Weather, and Geography of the United States. To aid students in their studies, the department has added to its map collection, making a total of over 1,800 map sheets and over 200 wall maps. New weather equipment will enable the majors to read electronic temperatures of the United States on the ISNU campus. The Geography Department reflects a picture of steady advancement.

Fair and warmer seems to be the prediction Ron Clendening will make as he takes the daily reading for the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Home Economics

Three years of anticipation—then finally home economics majors are given the opportunity to reside in the Rambo Home Management House. The girls are well-prepared in advance for this experience through the many courses offered in the curriculum of the Home Economics Department, which is headed by Dr. Florence Davis. These courses include instruction in diet and nutrition, meal-preparation, and consumer economics. During their nine-week stay at Rambo, three to five of the home economics majors live together in either side of the duplex. In addition to practicing homemaking skills, the girls apply their special talents through such projects as reupholstering furniture and redecorating the house interior.

Mathematics

Because of the rapid progress in technology, the great need for a higher level of mathematical literacy is readily apparent. In recognition of this need, the Mathematics Department, which is headed by Dr. Clyde McCormick, prepares teachers for high schools, junior high schools, and junior colleges. Courses offered by the department are designed to strengthen teachers better to understand classroom problems and to give them an increased grasp of mathematics. The challenge of teaching mathematics can be found in preparing students for careers in mathematics, science, engineering, aeronautics, and numerous other fields.

Men's Health and Physical Education

The clash of shoulder pads, the crack of a bat, the shrill tweet of the whistle—these are some of the sounds that emanate from the department of Men's Health and Physical Education. Amid these sounds and the objectives for which they speak, the future teacher in this field is taught how to apply his own ideas and the methods he has learned in the instruction of physical education. Here at ISNU, students in this field receive professional preparation to qualify them as physical educators and as coaches in football, basketball, baseball, track and other sports. Aware of future needs, the department, under Dr. C. E. Horton, is considering an expanded program.

Music

"Left . . . right . . . left . . . right!" Each fall the Music Department begins its musical season on the "left foot" with the organization of its all-men and all-women marching bands. One of the most active teacher training areas on campus, the Music Department sponsors many groups, including Men's Glee Club, Women's Chorus, and Orchestra. Headed by Dr. Howard Rye, the Music Department continually strives to fulfill its purpose—to give its 125 students the training necessary to become qualified teachers of music. Music majors receive both vocal and instrumental training while courses in music theory, history, and literature also widen the students' musical horizons. As a result, for the past 20 years 100 per cent of our music graduates have found immediate placement.

Physical Science

Science today serves to lengthen and enrich life on one hand while threatening its destruction on the other. The preservation and hope of democracy depend upon education, a major function of which is the intelligent interpretation of science. The Department of Physical Science and its head, Dr. Ralph Gooding, prepare teachers for an increasingly challenging science profession, which includes the fields of chemistry and physics. Modern classrooms, offices, laboratories, and equipment enable the capable teaching staff to place major emphasis on the education of future science teachers.

Social Science

In the fall of 1958 came a major change. Realizing the need for better general education for future teachers, Dr. John A. Kinneman, head of the Social Science Department, inserted Political Science 105, Sociology 106, and Economics 107 into the curriculum to replace Con. Civ.—a long-standing freshman requirement.

An item of special interest to social science majors and minors was the Summer Conference on Public Issues 1958, which afforded students the opportunity to hear such distinguished speakers as Paul M. Butler, head of the Democratic National Committee, and Clarence G. Adamy, publicity chairman of the Republican National Committee.

"No, Washington probably did not throw a silver dollar across the Potomac, students. . .," lectures Loyal Darr to his U High American history class.

Special Education

The Special Education Department is like a gigantic puzzle. When assembled by Dr. Harold Phelps and his staff, the department creates the whole pattern of teaching in specialized areas. The many paths from which to choose include the teaching of the blind, the deaf and hard of hearing, the defective in speech and the physically handicapped. Some of the general courses offered to supplement these fields consist of Functional Anatomy, Folk Literature for Children, Speech Re-education, and Laboratory Reading Methods. These courses are challenging, but the rewards are great in regard to personal satisfaction and achievement experienced by a special education teacher working with both handicapped and gifted children.

Speech

The study of the theory and practice of oral expression and communication . . . that's speech as learned by students in Voice and Diction, the beginning course in the field. Under the direction of Dr. F. L. D. Holmes, the Speech Department guides its majors in the furthering of their interests in the specific areas of dramatics, radio, forensics, oral interpretation, and speech theory. In the department, a student may prepare to teach in the high school, to direct speech improvement in the elementary school, or to certify as a speech correctionist. Under the general education plan, all students may choose Discussion, Introduction to the Theatre, Persuasion, and many other courses as electives.

By listening to the playback of a speech recording this coid hears what her voice sounds like to those who hear it.

Women's Health and Physical Education

A three-program system has been devised by the Women's H. & P. E. Department, under the headship of Dr. Ellen Kelly. Under the first program, Recreational Activities, the main reward gained is personal benefit. Physical Education Majors to Teach, the second program, educates ISNU's 106 physical education majors and 30 minors. The third program, Voluntary Recreation, is divided into three parts: intramural sports, which is open to all women on campus; club activities, which includes square dancing, Orchesis, and swim club; and extramurals, which is for highly skilled women. The department co-sponsored an exhibition by the Danish Gymnastics Team.

The little feathered bird doesn't stand a chance as this badminton doubles team smashes a shot across the net.
